MY INTENTION FOR TODAY

What does your heart want to release?

What is the Heart Wall?

Understanding the most important discovery in energy medicine

Your heart is the most electromagnetic organ in your body. Its electromagnetic field extends up to 12 feet around you in every direction. Your heart has its own nervous system - over 40,000 neurons - sometimes called the "heart brain." Scientific research shows the heart sends more signals to the brain than the brain sends to the heart, and it communicates with every single cell in your body.

So when we experience intense emotional events - heartbreak, grief, trauma, betrayal, loss - the subconscious mind does something remarkable. It builds a protective wall around the heart using trapped emotional energy. Layer by layer, emotion by emotion, the Heart Wall forms.

DR. BRADLEY NELSON'S DISCOVERY

Dr. Bradley Nelson, creator of the Emotion Code, discovered that approximately 93% of people have a Heart Wall. It is built by the subconscious mind as a form of protection during times of emotional distress - using whatever trapped emotions are available as building material. The Heart Wall was meant to keep you safe. But the protection that once served you may now be the thing holding you back.

"I don't fix anybody. I don't heal anybody. I assist you in releasing what's trapped so your body can do what it already knows how to do."

- MILA VELAZQUEZ

NOTES

What is the Heart Wall Made Of?

Every Heart Wall is as unique as the person who carries it

Each Heart Wall is completely unique. It is made of different trapped emotions - grief, sadness, fear, anger, betrayal, abandonment, heartache, despair. The subconscious mind uses whatever trapped emotions are available and stacks them up like bricks in a wall.

When you ask the subconscious what the Heart Wall is "made of" - the physical material - it gives you a metaphor. Some people's Heart Walls are made of wood. Some are stone. Some are metal, glass, concrete, or even something unexpected like ice or thorns. The material tells you something about how strong the protection is, how long it has been there, and how deeply the subconscious felt it needed to guard you.

COMMON MATERIALS

- Wood - natural, organic protection
- Stone or brick - heavy, long-standing
- Metal or steel - hard, impenetrable
- Glass - fragile but sharp
- Concrete - thick and dense
- Ice - cold, frozen grief

THICKNESS VARIES TOO

Some Heart Walls are paper thin. Some are 20 feet thick. Some have been there since childhood. The thickness gives you an indication of how much emotional energy the subconscious used to build it - and how many layers there are to release.

You can ask: "How thick is my Heart Wall?" and muscle test for the answer.

TRAPPED EMOTIONS AS BUILDING BLOCKS

Each trapped emotion in the Heart Wall is like a brick. As you release them one by one, the wall gets thinner. Some people release their entire Heart Wall in a single session. For others, it takes multiple sessions over days or weeks. There is no wrong pace. Your body releases what it is ready to release, when it is ready.

What do you think your Heart Wall might be made of?

Why Does the Heart Wall Matter?

The wall that once protected you may now be the thing blocking you

The Heart Wall was built to protect you from further emotional pain. And it did its job - it kept you safe during a time when you needed that safety. The problem is that it does not just block pain from coming in. It blocks everything. Love going in. Love going out. Connection. Abundance. Creativity. The full experience of being alive.

WHAT THE HEART WALL BLOCKS

- Love going in and coming out
- Deep connection with others
- Abundance and success
- Creative expression
- Feeling fully alive and present
- Joy, peace, and contentment
- Intimacy and vulnerability

SIGNS YOU MAY HAVE A HEART WALL

- ☐ Chest tightness or pressure
- ☐ Difficulty giving or receiving love
- ☐ Feeling numb or disconnected
- ☐ Relationship struggles
- ☐ Feeling like something is blocking you
- ☐ Depression or sadness you can't explain
- ☐ Neck pain, shoulder tension
- ☐ Anxiety or overwhelm

"Your Heart Wall was there for a reason. It served you. But now it might be the very thing standing between you and the life you actually want."

- MILA VELAZQUEZ

Which of these resonate with you?

The Emotion Code Chart

Your primary reference tool for identifying trapped emotions in the Heart Wall

The Emotion Code Chart, developed by Dr. Bradley Nelson, organizes 60 emotions into two columns (A and B), with six rows each. Each row corresponds to a different organ or gland system in the body. This chart is used with muscle testing to narrow down exactly which emotion is trapped in the Heart Wall.

HOW TO USE THE CHART

Step 1: Ask "Is this trapped emotion in Column A?" - muscle test for yes or no. If no, it is in Column B.

Step 2: Ask "Is this emotion in an odd row?" - then narrow to the specific row (1-6).

Step 3: Once you have the row, test each emotion in that row until you get a "yes." That is the trapped emotion.

How to Clear the Heart Wall

The step-by-step process for releasing trapped emotions from the Heart Wall

PREREQUISITE

You need to be able to muscle test before working on the Heart Wall. If you have not taken the "Muscle Test Like Mila" workshop, that is your starting point. You cannot do this work without a reliable yes/no from your body.

Connect

Set your intention. Take a breath. Connect to your higher self. Ask for permission to work on the Heart Wall. This is not a rushed process - you go in with respect.

Ask

"Do I have a Heart Wall?" Muscle test for yes or no. If the answer is yes, you are ready to begin identifying the emotions within it.

Identify

Use the Emotion Code Chart. Ask: "Is the first trapped emotion in the Heart Wall in Column A?" Narrow it down to the row, then to the specific emotion.

Get Details

Once you have the emotion, ask the subconscious for more information. "When was this emotion trapped?" "Was it absorbed from someone else?" "Was it inherited?" You do not need details to release it, but they can bring powerful awareness.

Release

Swipe a magnet (or your hand) along the governing meridian - from the forehead, over the top of the head, and down the back of the neck. Three swipes for a personal emotion. Ten swipes for an inherited emotion.

Confirm

Muscle test to confirm: "Has this emotion been released from the Heart Wall?" You should get a yes. If not, swipe again.

Repeat

Continue identifying and releasing emotions until the subconscious says the Heart Wall is gone - or until it says you have released enough for today.

PROCESSING TIME

Your body needs time to process after releasing trapped emotions. Typically 1-3 days between sessions, though it can be longer. Your subconscious will tell you (via muscle testing) when you are ready for the next round. Listen to your body. Do not rush this.

NOTES

Track every emotion released from your Heart Wall

HEART WALL THICKNESS

e.g. 3 feet, 10 inches...

Continue tracking on additional pages if needed. Some Heart Walls have many layers - keep going until muscle testing confirms the Heart Wall is fully released.

What Happens After the Heart Wall is Released?

When the wall comes down, everything shifts

Some people feel the difference immediately. Others notice it unfolding over days and weeks. There is no single "correct" experience - your body processes in its own way, at its own pace. What matters is that the wall is no longer there, and the heart can do what it was always meant to do.

"The number one thing that will change your life: having your Heart Wall released. When you take the Heart Wall away, love can go in and love can go out."

- DR. BRADLEY NELSON

Feeling Lighter

A weight you did not even know you were carrying lifts. Your chest opens. You breathe differently.

More Connection

Relationships shift. You are more open, more present, more willing to let people in.

Emotional Waves

You may cry, have vivid dreams, or feel waves of emotion moving through you. This is normal processing - not something going wrong.

Abundance Opens

Many people report financial shifts, career opportunities, or creative breakthroughs after their Heart Wall is released.

Fatigue

Your body is doing a lot of energetic work. Rest is not laziness - it is part of the healing.

Vivid Dreams

The subconscious processes through dreams. Do not be surprised if your dream life gets more intense for a while.

Some people also notice physical changes - reduced neck or shoulder tension, less chest pressure, fewer headaches. The body holds everything, and when the emotions release, the physical tension often releases too.

How do you feel after your clearing?

How to support your body and heart as they integrate

POST-CLEARING PROTOCOL

Your Self-Care Checklist

- ☐ Drink plenty of water. Water helps your body move and process the released energy. More than you think you need.
- ☐ Rest when your body asks for it. If you feel tired after a session, that is your body telling you it is processing. Sleep. Nap. Lie down. It is not a sign of weakness - it is a sign the work is happening.
- ☐ Be gentle with yourself. You just released something you may have been carrying for years - maybe decades, maybe from before you were born (inherited emotions). Give yourself permission to feel whatever comes up without judgment.
- ☐ Journal what comes up. Memories, feelings, dreams, physical sensations - write them down. Not to analyze, just to witness. Your body is telling you its story.
- ☐ Give yourself time to integrate. Do not rush into the next clearing session. Wait 1-3 days minimum. Let your body catch up with what just shifted. Muscle test to confirm you are ready before the next round.
- ☐ Move gently if it feels right. A slow walk, gentle stretching, or simply sitting outside can help the energy move through. Nothing intense - just gentle movement.
- ☐ Epsom salt bath. Salt baths support energetic clearing. 20 minutes in warm water with 1-2 cups of Epsom salt.

YOUR NEXT STEPS

Your Healing Journey

The Heart Wall is just the beginning

Releasing your Heart Wall is one of the most profound things you can do for yourself. But the healing does not stop here. There are layers to this work - trapped emotions throughout the body, inherited patterns, absorbed energies from other people. The Heart Wall is the door. What comes next is up to you.

Go Deeper: Advanced Healing

Mila's advanced workshops take you further into the Emotion Code and beyond - inherited emotions, psychic trauma, prenatal trapped emotions, and working in the quantum field.
